A Medicine of Power in All Liver Disorders.

When the liver is torpid, it throws impurities ir to the system, which hamper every organ in the body. The result is that functional processes are not properly carried on. Impurities get into the blood, the storach is bilious, the kidneys weak and the bowels irregular—generally constipated. Herbine clears out all these impurities, opens up the obstructed channels, strengthens the torpid liver, cleanses the blood, purifies and regulates the bowels. After the system has been thus overhauled, there is an immediate improvement. Appetite returns, digestion is good, the spirits rise, the mind clears of gloomy forebodings and everything looks bright and cheerful, which means, sound, healthy conditions everywhere in the body.

With Other Tepics That Are of Interest to the Workers for the Church.

THE leader's aim should be to foster and encourage by his own suggestions the expression of religious experiences of a genuand unstereotyped character, that the power and freedom of the spirit may be realized in the meeting.

The leader's own part should be as awakening and suggestive as possi-ble, and at the same time instructive and edifying. When it is found that others are reluctant to take part in the meeting or their contributions have become largely mechanical and spiritually unfruitful, the leader's part may be developed into a lecture. This mode is found most satisfactory in nany English churches, and in many city churches among us. Such lecures should, however, be carefully conformed to the occasion and be promotive of the same ends sought in the prayer-meeting. They should not be sermons, and should be of a strictly practice! and devotional char-

For such occasions, the exposition f Scripture in longer portions has been made by many men, notably F. R. Robertson and Alexander McLaren. So also in this country the late Dr. George Dana Boardman used the whole of the New Testament systematically in this way. Others have taken the topics of the Sunday-school essons or the Christian Endeavor series. This plan has the advantage of uniting different branches of the work of the church and utilizing an nterest already awakened.

Such expositions of Scripture should be proposed with care, and based on a critical study of the portion selected, in which the leader avails himself of the best modern authorities, but this critical work should not be introduced into the exposition, the results simply being practically applied. These expositions should be both devotional and practical, the spiritual impulse being first sought for, and then its moral application being indicated. This is the apostle Paul's method in all his epistles. Sufficient variety of subjects can be found and touched upon incidentaly to a systematic course of Bible study. Perhaps a rapid survey of the contents of Scripture by books will be found less tedious than a series on a single book might.-Leighton Williams, D. D., Marlborough-on-Hudson, N. Where Faith is Needed.

The social problems that face us today are so vast, so terrifying, so unyielding, so deep-rooted, that courage will fail us unless we have great faith Julius Smith, student of Culver wished to break himself of smoking." in God. In this crusade against the evils of the world to which the church is turning we need faith as peace recently remarked that when he considered the impensity of the undertaking and the opposition-an opposition which grows venomous as the cause advances—he could not work with either zeal or hope did he not have abiding faith in God. The social itate in the night watches mere than mere pietist. He should worship in church more than the mere lover of ecstatic states of being. He should meditate in the night watches more than the monk consecrated to that alone. What we most need to fear today is the decline of prayer, worship, personal communion with God-for these

One of the latest was constructed for the Italian State railroads, and the cab That Printer of Udell's was placed in front that the engineer might have the clearest possible view of the track ahead.
